LOS ANGELES
IGLTA 2015
8-11 APRIL
32ND ANNUAL GLOBAL CONVENTION

32nd Annual Global Convention Review

@iglta.org/convention
LOS ANGELES, CA

Los Angeles rolled out the red carpet for LGBT tourism professionals during the International Gay & Lesbian Travel Association’s 32nd Annual Global Convention, 8-11 April, which united tourism professionals from 27 countries for education and networking designed to enhance the landscape of LGBT tourism. The beautiful Hyatt Regency Century Plaza, our host hotel, was also a highlight for attendees.

The IGLTA Annual Global Convention had an economic impact of $950,000 on the city of Los Angeles, according to the LA Tourism & Convention Board’s research department.

ATTENDEE PROFILE

Coming from as far away as Japan, Australia and Africa, attendees represented a diverse array of sectors within the travel industry, including:

- Associations
- Tour Operators/Travel Agents
- Tourism Bureaus
- Marketing/PR/Advertising
- Event Organizers
- Media Outlets
- Accommodations

Total numbers of attendees: 458
Media & Buyers: 21%

Total countries represented: 27
Countries represented thru global journalists/media: 10
This year’s honorees as selected by the IGLTA board from our members and allies are:

The Chair Award - Barack Obama, President of the United States
"President Obama has gone to great lengths to make the U.S. more welcoming to the global LGBT community and has allowed individuals with HIV/AIDS to travel freely. " - IGLTA Board Chair Dan Melesurgo

Hanns Ebensten Hall of Fame Award - Olivia
Olivia has been serving the lesbian community since 1973, both as a groundbreaking independent women’s record label and as THE travel company for lesbians.

Destination Pioneer - The Curacao Tourist Board
The Curacao Tourist Board put this island in the Dutch Caribbean on the map for LGBT travel with its “Live and Let Live” philosophy and the 2004 launch of GayCuracao.com. Curacao has created several LGBT marketing campaigns and continues to make strides in equality for the gay community in an effort to become one of the most welcoming destinations for LGBT travelers in the Caribbean – a region that often makes headlines for homophobia.

LGBT Event Pioneer - Doug Swallow
Doug Swallow is the founder of Gay Day at Disney, which began with a small LGBT group wearing red shirts to the Magic Kingdom in Orlando on the first Saturday in June and evolved into a multi-day commercial event that attracts upwards of 100,000 LGBT travelers to Central Florida.

Networking - Cámara de Comerciantes LGBT de Colombia
(Colombia LGBT Chamber of Commerce)
Cámara de Comerciantes LGBT de Colombia was created in 2012 in recognition of the country’s emerging LGBT market. The group collaborates with the local government as well as national chambers in the U.S. and Argentina to provide support to local LGBT businesses and host the annual WeTrade Business Summit in Bogotá.

Travel Writer - Jurriaan Teulings
In a career spanning 14 years in both mainstream and LGBT travel media, Jurriaan Teulings has extensively traveled in some 80+ countries, breaking stereotypes along the way. His official home is Amsterdam, but he spends 8-10 months a year on the road, where he has shimmied with Interpol-listed fugitive chicken thieves and chummed up with Indian royalty in his commitment to telling authentic, unexpected stories.

Community Honor - The Los Angeles LGBT Center
The Los Angeles LGBT Center traces its roots to 1969 when its founders first offered client services. Today, with more than 450 employees and 3,000 volunteers, the center is the world’s largest provider of services for LGBT people and a member of the Clinton Global Initiative.
IGLTA Foundation Building Bridges Scholarships

This year’s Building Bridges Scholarship Program provided trips to Los Angeles for the Annual Global Convention to three students and two small business owners.

Kan Kikumoto is a student at Sophia University in Tokyo, Japan. He hopes to lead LGBT tours in Japan, his home country, when he completes his studies.

Wang Hao (Charlie) was born and raised in China where he did an internship at the Beijing LGBT Center. He is now an economics student at the University of Tokyo and pursuing interests in LGBT tourism and marketing.

Ena Yanagi studies tourism and gender and LGBT issues at Meiji Gakuin University in her home city of Yokohama, Japan. She wants to become a travel agent.

Olubode Shawn Brown founded BLOOM Jamaica in 2010 to safely take gay and lesbian travelers to his home country for an annual party in Negril. This year, he is launching BLOOM Escapes to offer small, customized tours to Jamaica with an insider, LGBT perspective.

Fabio Rugeles owns the small business Cibum S.A.S., which is developing a gastronomy tour route to showcase his home city of Bucaramanga, Colombia to LGBT travelers.

The IGLTA Foundation would like to thank Delta Air Lines for generously providing flight assistance to bring our scholarship recipients to Los Angeles.
IGLTA Convention Highlights

• Buyer/Supplier Marketplace
  Participation more than doubled for the second annual appointment-driven Buyer/Supplier Marketplace, attracting buyers that represent more than $946 million in annual LGBT travel bookings worldwide.

• Getty Center Reception
  A private gala reception hosted by the Los Angeles Tourism & Convention Board at the Getty Center with performances by Leslie Jordan, Tig Notaro, and the Gay Men’s Chorus of Los Angeles that included viewing access to the museum’s stunning collection of Impressionist paintings drew more than 600 attendees. It was IGLTA’s largest-ever conference networking event.

• The White House LGBT liaison Aditi Hardikar
  The White House represented for the first time: White House Associate Director of Public Engagement, Aditi Hardikar, served as one of the opening keynote speakers; her speech was delivered 9 April, the same day that President Obama once again showed his LGBT support by calling for an end to gay conversion therapies.
IGLTA Convention Feedback

- More than 90% of our convention survey respondents rated the value and their satisfaction with the convention as either “Excellent” or “Good,” making this one of our most highly rated conferences ever.

- The number one reason for attending the convention for these respondents was “Networking” (87%).

- “Education” and “Market my Business/Service” were ranked equally in the survey as the second most important reason for attending (57%). Attendees put a high value on learning about new LGBT markets, social media, and other online tools for their businesses.

- For the second year, an appointment-driven marketplace provided one-on-one meetings between buyers and suppliers. When given the opportunity to provide additional comments, a majority of respondents praised this convention component in particular and asked that it continue.
